Technical View

The 50 index opened on a subdued note at the pivotal support of 18100, however with negative slopping 20 DEMA acting as overhead resistance the selling pressure intensified and it plummeted over 380 points from the weekly top. The index managed to sustain above the 17800 mark on declining implied volatility and formed a series of inside bars that indicates volatility compression. The zone of 17900-17800 holds multiple conjunctions of supports like multiple EMAs across timeframes, the previous gap zone, and 23.6% Fibonacci retracement on the daily timeframe and as far as the index manages to sustain above the said zone, it will remain in the attempt rally.
